

Picnic Party

A picnic to tickle the tastebuds: Leaf Dominoes
by Florie Saint-Val at Editions MeMo

The leaves dominos are composed of 28 rectangular pieces divided into two sections, like a classic dominoes, but with a difference – in this set of giant dominoes the dots are replaced by coloured leaves. The 29th card contains the seed that starts the whole game. As the game progresses, the branch grows longer and longer, along which a host of tiny people can be seen capering about, busy preparing a picnic.

A little book present the tiny people before they climb up onto the branches on the dominoes. Drinks and food are being prepared, as well as music and decoration for the big party. The menu and a recipe are proposed at the end of the booklet.

To play the game: the starting card with the seed is on the table. Each player has 6 cards, the rest is the stock. To be able to play one must put on the table cards with the same number of leaves, or he/she picks from the stock and wait one turn. The first to play all his/her cards wins.
